Judgemeanow Community College

is an exciting, expanding multicultural 11-16 specialist language college with over 1200 students.

Opened in June 2009, the school is based in 65 acres in Evington on the outskirts of the city of Leicester.

New school

The new school is set to become an exceptional centre of learning, providing technology to engage and educate its students. Judgemeanow aims to create the best possible setting for young people to learn in and meet the educational needs of over 1200 students.

Personalised Technology

Northgate Managed Services has worked closely with the teachers and Local Education Partnership to tailor and personalise technology. This has ensured that the ICT needs of students are met as well as the education vision of the schools. Also committed to supporting the schools on a day-to-day basis through its managed service, Northgate's team of ICT experts are on hand to fix any ICT-related problems quickly and efficiently and work remotely to ensure many problems are fixed before they even impact on the schools.

Keen to help students take ownership of their own learning, the common technology vision for both schools is to strongly emphasise personalisation and the provision of anytime, anywhere learning. Working closely with Northgate, the school is now fully wireless-enabled, allowing students to access their work from different locations throughout the school.

The creation of a safer school environment was an additional key element of Judgemeanow Community College's vision for technology. To achieve this, Northgate implemented E-registration and cashless payment systems to help make the school a safer place for everyone.
